His name was Gopal and he was a young, dynamic and well-mannered boy. He was asked to shout "Wolf!" on seeing a wolf near the flock. He was sincere and dedicated to the job assigned to him. However, after guarding the sheep for so many days, he was tired of this monotonous work so he wished to play a prank. Hence, he shouted "Wolf!" as a joke. All the villagers hurriedly went there to help him but they found no wolf there. The boy started laughing at them saying: “Oh! What a great fun!” The villagers got angry and dispersed. After some days he played the same trick. Slowly the villagers realized his trick and paid no notice at it. Once, a wolf actually turned up and the boy got so terrified. So, he shouted: “Oh God! Wolf! Wolf” but villagers ignored it thinking it to be his usual trick. The wolf killed many sheep. The boy sat there crying. Villagers saw crying boy and realized what happened but till then it was too late.

Science fiction is one of the most popular forms of literature. It commands a very wide reading public. Many writers all over the world are trying to produce it. As the name itself indicates, it is a mixture of fiction and reality where adventures are set against the background of tomorrow. It is this orientation towards the future which endears it to young people and those in the forefront of science. Some of the greatest writers of science fiction such as Arthur Clarke, Issac Asimov, Robert Heinlein, John Taine, Edward Smith and Leo Sziland were themselves renowned scientists or engineers. Science fiction is as old as human fantasy. Plato, Voltaire, Edgar Allan Poe, Jules Verne and H.G.Wells made their contribution to it long before it became a separate literary form. The name itself was invented only in 1926 by Hugo Gernsback, an American, who founded in 1928 the magazine Amazing Stories. Science fiction entered a new epoch in 1937, when John W Campbell Jr took over the editorship of Astounding Science Fiction. It now began to assume a story pattern. Not only did it include the element of scientific speculation, as it had done till now, but concerned itself with those of character and human drama as well. Since then the volume of science fiction produced has been on the increase. Even general magazines, radio, television and feature films have begun to make use of it.
